There is no need for equipment such as betting machines and tables and staff numbers are, therefore, kept to a minimum.

Despite the fact that online gambling sites do not have the same overheads as, for example, a casino, they can still offer their customers the same gaming opportunities including poker, roulette, blackjack, and slot machines.

The trouble with gambling online is that it can be kept secret.

When it comes to gambling online, bank accounts are easily accessible with just the click of a button, making it much more likely that gamblers will impulse bet and chase their losses.

One of the biggest problems with online gambling is the fact that many of these sites offer 'free to play' versions of their games, where members can play with pretend money.

However, once playing with real money, the odds will change and be in favour of the house.

Many online gamblers will be tempted to set up accounts because of the promise of free bets.

Alternatively, they can sign up at another gambling site instead.
