On the other hand, betting on games of skill has started to be legalized and accepted in India.

In a landmark judgment in 1996, the Supreme Court of India ruled that horse racing was a game of skill and, thus, considered legal in India. Games of skill refer to betting on games where your chances of winning can be made better if you gain more knowledge and skill on the subject matter.

If you are a novice who has no idea about the game, you are less likely to win your wager as opposed to an experienced punter who knows what he is doing. The experienced punter may study the conditions of the horse and the form of the rider in order to make a calculated choice and wager his money based on skillful deduction.

Card games such as Rummy and Teen Patti are also considered games of skill! As of now, sports betting has not been recognized as a game of skill in India.

However, there have been more and more states that have now started contemplating legalizing sports betting as an experienced punter who knows a lot about a particular sport can dramatically increase their chances of winning a wager.
