Wisconsin is home to many dedicated sports fans. Since then, 33 states and the District of Columbia have legalized gambling on sports.

The land that most tribes were allocated in their reservations lacked decent arable soil or sufficient water sources, rendering forms of economic income such as farming unprofitable.

Legalizing sports betting for Native American casinos in Wisconsin could only increase these positive consequences for the state's tribal population.

The most prominent of these are moral questions of gambling addiction. Gambling is classified by the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders as "persistent and recurrent problematic gambling behavior leading to clinically significant impairment or distress.

But it is important to put this knowledge into context.
